January 2015

Greetings!

There are key management critical reports from your practice management system to help you evaluate the performance of your practice so that you can correct problem situations, or build on past successes!

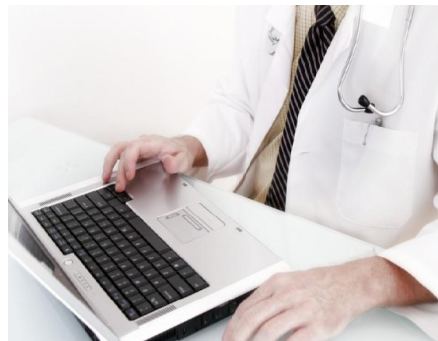

End of Year - Review Goals

In addition to running the standard reports for end-of-year financial information, there is much more to accomplish with an end of year review of your practice management software data. It's important to acknowledge what you did right and maybe not-so-right in 2014.

- * Did you provide patients with the care they needed to remain healthy?
- * Did you see the right volume of clients and patients and provide a broad enough range of services to keep your practice healthy?
- * Did you set the stage for future interaction with your clients and patients?

While you can specify date ranges in most of the reports, running them at year's end makes the reports more meaningful by providing a snapshot of 2014.

This will allow you to analyze the performance of your practice with the purpose of making "New Year's Resolutions" to do things more efficiently and productively in 2015.
